SECTION A (READING COMPREHENSION)

I. Read the following passage and answer the questions carefully. (10)

Everybody wants to succeed in life. For some success means achieving whatever they desire or dream. For many, it is name, fame, and social position. Whatever be the meaning of success, it is success which makes a man popular.

All great men have been successful. They are remembered for their great achievements. It is certain that success comes to those who are sincere, hardworking, loyal and committed to their goals.

Success has been man's greatest motivation. It is very important for everyone. Success has a great effect on life. It brings pleasure and pride. It gives a sense of fulfillment. It means all-round development. Everybody hopes to be successful in life. But success smiles on those who have proper approach, planning. vision and stamina. Proper and timely application of all these elements is bound to bear fruit. One cannot be successful without cultivating these basic qualities. It is very difficult to set out on a journey without knowing one's goals and purposes. Clarity in objective is a must to succeed in life. A focused approach with proper planning is certain to bring success. Indecision and insincerity are big obstacles on the path of success.

One should have the capability and resources to turn one's dreams into reality. Mere desire cannot bring you success. The desire should be weighed against factors like capability and resources. This is the basic requirement of success. The next important thing is the eagerness, seriousness, and urge to be successful. It is the driving force which decides the first step on the ladder of success.

One needs to pursue one's goals with all sincerity and passion. One should always be in high spirit. Lack of such a spirit leads to an inferiority complex which is a big obstruction on the path to success. Time is also a deciding factor. Only the punctual and committed achieve success in life.

II. Read the following case based passage and answer the questions given. (10)

Ayurveda or the science of life, is an ancient system of Indian medicine that is 4000 years old. According to ayurveda, health depends on the normal balance of three elements of the body- vata (air), pitho (bile), and kapha (phlegm).

Information about the system with proof is contained in two important medical treatises in Sanskrit language- the Charaka Samhita and the Sushruta Samhita, considered as belonging to the physician Charaka and Sushruta, who were surgeons. These are compilations of up- to-date medical knowledge made in the 1st century AD and later in the 7th century AD. Another work widely followed in recent times is Vaghabhatta's 'Ashtangahridoyam'.

Sushruta, identified as many as 1200 diseases including tuberculosis and smallpox. Ayurvedic treatment is largely dietetic (food prescribed) and medicinal. All drugs used are obtained from indigenous plants. Charaka lists 500 medicinal plants and Sushruta mentions 760 in the olden days, physicians used to collect the plants and prepare the drugs themselves. Many of these have finally appeared in western books describing drugs. Ancient Ayurveda included advanced surgical practises. Details of instruments for different operations are given in the classical texts. Even plastic surgery was done particularly for the restoration of an amputated nose, by transplanting tissue from the cheek. Modern surgeons have adopted this technique.

Sushruta describes 20 sharp and 101 blunt surgical instruments including knives of various patterns. During the British rule, large sections of the population, especially in rural areas, continued to rely on Ayurveda. But allopathic or western system of medicine was officially encouraged by the British. Since independence, however, Ayurveda has received official recognition. Ayurvedic universities and colleges have been started and integrated courses are set up, combining the study of ancient remedies and modern medicine. Many research institutions are now documenting ancient health practises and herbal remedies.
